

CRISIS FOR TOLSTOY WILL COME TODAY

Famous Russian Philosopher
May Not Survive, His Physicians Say.

ASTAPOVA, Russia, Nov. 18.—Count Tolstoy passed a critical night, and it was announced from his bedside by the attending physicians this morning that today would likely be the turning point in the case. He would either start upon the road to recovery or sink beyond all hope.

The first bulletin from the bedside today stated that Tolstoy's temperature was 99.1, a slight decrease from the high fever of yesterday. The count is delirious part of the time, and during periods of delirium mutters passages from his books.

Tolstoy's heart action is alarming the doctors. His pulse is weak and irregular.

Although ill and weak, Countess Tolstoy demands that she be allowed at her husband's bedside.

Lies in Log Cabin.

The weather here is intensely cold, and the scene a desolate one. The stationmaster's house, in which Tolstoy lies, is nothing more than a log cabin.

In order to avoid the scandal of his probably refusing Christian burial, a final effort is to be made to reconcile Count Leo Tolstoy to the Greek Catholic Church.

With this end in view Bishop Tamboff left today for Astapova, where the world famous author is dying in the hut of a railroad trainman. If Tolstoy will consent to a reconciliation with the church, it is declared the sentence of excommunication against him, that followed his writing of "Resurrection," will be rescinded.

Church May Relent.

Bishop Tamboff's departure followed a meeting of the holy synod yesterday, at which it was decided to relax, at least the severity which the church has maintained toward Tolstoy. Antonious, metropolitan of St. Petersburg, and presiding officer of the synod, also sent the count a solicitous message telling him that he had prayed constantly for his reconciliation with the church ever since the breach came.

Tolstoy's condition today is regarded as all but hopeless. He spent a sleepless night last night. Although he slept some today, his heart was very weak. His temperature is 99.

ORDER OF EAGLES NAMES ITS TICKET

At a meeting of Washington Aerle, No. 125, Fraternal Order of Eagles, last night, the following ticket was named for election in December: President, William H. Clarke and L. D. Hays; vice president, William E. Evans; chaplain, Dr. William H. Winder; secretary, J. D. Britz; treasurer, James L. Toomey; trustees, Frederick Kraemer, Col. R. L. Montague, B. W. Brähler, and William H. Cowen; physicians, Dr. A. R. Hooe, Dr. Philip Carey, Dr. William F. Walter, Dr. Thomas Smith, Dr. William Moss, and Dr. A. Digs.

Among the past presidents present were M. Fisher, Hugh Harvey, William R. Dawson, and Daniel Driscoll.
